Rune Lysgaard

Rune got his first Lhasa Apso in 1981 and it became his first champion. Since then he has owned and bred Lhasas (very limited). The homebred Int Now & Swed Ch Spinmatic Newsletter was the top winning Lhasa in Norway 1993 and one of only three Norwegian Lhasas to win a Kennel club Group in Norway, which she did twice. Another group winner bred by Rune was Now & Swed CH Spinmatic Starlight Express. Rune imported also from UK GB CH Now & Swed Ch Nedlik Elegant George of Botolph, a group winner in Sweden.

Rune also owned Norways very first Int Ch Tibetan Terrier, Int & Nordic CH NW-84 Tintavon Darth Vadar, a successful show dog here before being exported to US in 1987. Rune has also bred a CH and INT Ch in pugs. At home today he has a Lhasa Bitch and a Tibetan Spaniel.

He got his licence as a ring steward in 1985 and was very busy doing that until he got his licence to judge in February 2000.

He has judged at Championship show level in Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Germany, Ireland, the Netherlands, England, USA and Slovakia. He has judged Lhasa Specialities in Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Germany USA, England (Twice) and Slovakia. He has also judged Tibetan Spaniel specialities in Sweden, Finland and Slovakia (Tibet Dog Europe 2009).

Introducing our Overseas judges ;

Darja Skok Lamut ;

My interest for the breed goes back 25 years. I was much younger at that time and was grieving over a loss of my poodle. As a little consolation I was given a book presenting small companion dogs. The second I set my eyes on a lovely photo of a shih tzu trio was crucial. I fell in love with the breed instantly.

From seeing one to actually obtaining one was a long and strenuous journey. Waiting and looking for it was very useful for it gave me the time to learn about the breed and to find the literature to study.

At that time shih tzu was practically an unknown breed in my country. There were only about 10 shih tzus in entire Yugoslavia and, most frustrating, no puppies to buy. So I headed for Cruft's to see more dogs. And there was much to be seen, indeed.

In the mean time I found my dear Puck Vliegheuis, kennel v.h. Martinihaim, from Holland who had no prejudice against a girl from a then socialist country and in 1989 my first male arrived, a female followed soon from the same kennel. I soon became a devoted exhibitor and both dogs gained their titles shortly. On the way I learned about showing and more about my breed as well. Although I am a bit too emotional to be a "serious" breeder I have registered my kennel "Lian - Hua" (meaning Lotus Blossom). I breed very seldom but always to better the breed.

At the same time the preparations for founding a club to care for Tibetan breeds were also in full progress and after Slovenia became independent a Club for Tibetan Breeds of Slovenia was founded with me as the first chairwoman. One of our primary task was (and still is) to support the breeders of our breeds with advice and information, in order to help them breed correct, healthy dogs. In our Club for Tibetan Breeds of Slovenia we also have Shih tzu's. Annually we prepare special shows and also seminars regarding our breeds, that all interested - from other judges to pet-dog owners- can attend to widen their horizons.

I passed examinations in 1994 to become a judge, first for the Shih tzu, a year later for the rest of Tibetan breeds in FCI IX. Group and the Do-Khyi followed later.

I do not judge very often, since my favourite breed is not shown in great numbers here. Specialists, like myself, are more often delegated to judge club's specialities than all-breeds shows. However, I had an honour to judge Speciality for all Tibetan Breeds (except TM) at several International Dog Shows and Specialities for Shih tzu's alone (Finland, Sweden, Slovenija, Germany).

In my opinion judging is a very responsible task and a bit ungrateful one as well. No matter what you do, you can only make the winners happy and all the rest go home disappointed. I find it especially frustrating seeing a ring full of deserving, high quality dogs and yet I have to choose just one winner. But no matter what - I always try my best to award those dogs that fit the standard the best and represent the spirit of the breed most closely.

Apart from the dogs I have a full-time job with limited number of free days, which, of course, have to be divided between dog events and my always patient family.

Presently I am owned by four shih tzu's, four mature ladies and a young princess.
